

FAR FAR AWAY

In the midnight hour, she whispered to me
There was something wrong, I started to see
She cried some buckets, river's I'm sure
With a heart of gold, a heart so pure

When I held her closer she started to say
"Would you take me into your world, far, far away"
And as she laid her rough hands across my chest
I told her so gently "I'll do my best"

BRIDGE

I soothed her soul with words from the heart
They pierced like an arrow, one lonely dart
I told her "whenever your lost, remember my words
Far, far away, flying south we two birds"

BRIDGE

She whispered to me "with you by my side
I feel so safe now, by day and by night"
Comfort she had, her problems no more
I knew I had touched her, in her very core
